Chairman Awaiting Results Of Past And Future Raids In Many Cities

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—Dies committee officials said today that the committee will soon make public a 1,000-page document containing evidence linking the Communist Party of America to Soviet Russian domination.

The "Red Paper," which originally was scheduled to be given to the public before the "White Paper" on Nazi propaganda was issued, is described by committee officials as a handbook on Communism.

Confined entirely to documentary evidence, the proposed new publication is said to reveal the complete history of propaganda and espionage activities of Communists and methods of fomenting worldwide revolution.

Meantime, Chairman Dies (D) Texas of the committee awaited results of raids which have been, or will be, staged in many cities. He informed the committee that he obtained "valuable evidence" dealing with Nazi propaganda in St. Louis but did not reveal the nature of it.

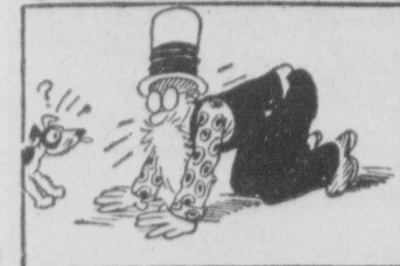

A committee investigator is scheduled to be in Boston today or Monday to seek lists of officials and members in organizations alleged to be part of, or friendly to, the Rome-Berlin axis. An investigator is being sent from Cleveland to Buffalo, while another investigator is scheduled to reach Philadelphia early next week, under a revised schedule.

C. I. O. FACING NEW YEAR WITH LITTLE MONEY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 23—The C. I. O. started a new year today with a new leader, but with less than $50,000 in the till. The new leader was Philip Murray, sandy-haired Scot from Pittsburgh, who was elevated to the presidency when John L. Lewis stepped out of office.

C. I. O.'s financial state was revealed by a member of the national board. The low figure in funds on hand, he explained, was somewhat misinformative, because he declared collections were improving but that expenses over recent months in far flung organizing campaigns had eaten deeply into the surplus. C. I. O. collects five cents per month from each dues paying member, and claims more than 4,000,000 members.

Conference Of Christians And Jews Intensifies Its Drive For National Unity

Engaged in a "mobilization for national unity," the National Conference of Christians and Jews, as a feature of the campaign, will present a citation to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the Supreme Court, in recognition of his contribution to the improvement of human relations. The ceremony will be performed at the chief justice's Washington home, December 27.

Leaders in all walks of life have acclaimed the conference for performing an essential service to national defense by working for national unity at a time when the United States is being assailed as never before by alien propaganda seeking to disrupt that unity.

"We are emphasizing that the American population comes from forty different Old World nations, from different racial strains and different religious faiths," says Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, national director, "and our contribution to national defense is the unity of these people, the spiritual unity that France did not have."

Work of the conference is both educational and active. During the past twelve years more than 25,000 teams composed of a Protestant minister, a Catholic priest, and a Jewish rabbi, have traveled to every corner of the United States. Each speaker explains his faith in an effort to promote understanding, tolerance and co-operation, seeking "not to wipe out religious differences, but to make America safe for differences."

Last year such teams addressed 10,000 interfaith conferences in 2,000 communities, reaching 1,500,000 persons in addition to the millions who heard them over the radio. Conference workers also visited 1,276 colleges and schools and a large number of farm and labor groups and conventions.

In addition to such educational work, the conference, when religious intolerance arises, goes into active battle. When Silver Shirt agitators tried to move into Lansing, Mich., in 1937, the conference drove them out by means of a publicity campaign against them. In Kansas the conference helped balk the senatorial aspirations of a man who had shown religious intolerance, and in St. Louis one of the conference round tables served the community by arbitrating a milk strike.

Leaders of the organization, which has 15,000 members and has set up its machinery in more than 300 cities, are three co-chairmen: Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Protestant, winner of the Nobel physics prize and University of Chicago professor; Prof. J. H. Hayes, Catholic, Columbia University historian; and Roger W. Straus, Jew, director of the American Smelting and Refining Co., and a member of the executive board of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Director Clinchy is a young Presbyterian minister.

One man, tentatively identified as assistant manager of the restaurant, was cut by flying glass. Police said the bomb probably was made of black powder and had been placed in the rear doorway. A police prowl car passing the rear of the place at the time of the blast was almost overturned by the concussion.

The establishment is one of a chain operated by Vernon B. Stouffer and his brother, Gordon. In addition to another restaurant here and the one in Philadelphia, the chain operates in New York, Chicago and Detroit.

Testimony of the Stouffer brothers was largely responsible for conviction in 1938 of Don Campbell and John McGee, Cleveland labor union leaders, on charges of extortion. Vernon Stouffer testified he had paid the pair $1,200 after threats of bombings and window breakings at the time the restaurant bombed today was under construction.

SECOND BLAST WRECKS UNIT OF STOUTER CHAIN

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23 — A bomb explosion early today ripped out a section of the rear wall and shattered windows in Stouffer's Playhouse Square restaurant in downtown Cleveland, following by little more than 24 hours the bombing of a Philadelphia restaurant of the Stouffer chain.

The youths must report to Probation Officer Frank Goff each month until they are 21 years old.

Relief expenditures in Pickaway County, between January 1, 1940 and September 1, 1940, were higher than those of neighboring counties, according to a State Welfare Department report received, Saturday, by County Auditor Forrest Short.

Pickaway County's expenditures for the period were $56,219, according to the report, as compared with $49,271 for Ross County, $30,450 for Fairfield County including Lancaster, and $45,533 for Fayette County.

TRUCES URGED BEFORE STRIKES IN ARMS PLANTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 — Warning against any blanket legislation that would outlaw strikes in national defense industries, Sen. Thomas (D) Utah, chairman of the powerful senate labor committee, today proposed creation of a broad mediation system requiring 90-day "truces" before strikes could be called.

Thomas made his suggestion to counteract demands made in the house for legislation to outlaw all strikes interfering with national defense production. The demands were made by Reps. Cox (D) Ga., Randolph (D) W. Va., and Costello (D) Cal., as a result of the CIO wage dispute which closed the Vultee Aircraft plant in California and stopped production on American and British plane orders.

The Utah senator, an ardent New Dealer, served notice that he would oppose any blanket anti-strike law.

"Such legislation would be so broad that you wouldn't know where to draw the line on what constitutes national defense materials," he said.

Thomas added: "I believe that any such difficulties as strikes interfering with national defense production could be handled simply."

Blame For Delay In Vultee Strike Peace Laid To U. S. Agent

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23—A stalemate was reached today in negotiations for settlement of the strike in the Vultee Aircraft Downey plant when union committeemen said that Major Sydney Simpson, war department representative who is acting as go-between in the strike, was physically incapable of participating in discussions.

At the same time, the CIO union committee, asked that the War Department send another representative to replace Major Simpson in the negotiations for settlement of the strike which has halted work on $84,000,000 in plane contracts for the United States and Great Britain.

A statement issued by the union committee said in part: "We believe that in the interest of national defense we are obliged to inform the public that it is a representative of the government who is holding up the settlement of the dispute."

"Vultee's trainers are needed for national defense," the statement went on to say that the union urged that another representative of the War Department be sent to the negotiations "if one is needed to settle this strike."

The strike was called on November 15 when 3,800 production workers in the Vultee plant walked out, forcing all 5,200 workers in the plant into idleness.

The union representatives, from the outset, claimed they demanded only wage increases, but the company officials charged the Vultee firm was being used as a guinea pig for a nation-wide drive to bring all airplane manufacture under the CIO.

Negotiations between the union and company representatives collapsed on Thursday over a "no-strike" clause in a proposed contract. A compromise plan, before both sides, would return the 5,200 plant workers to their jobs on Monday, if accepted. The company moved to break the deadlock by offering to reopen the plant provided the strikers would agree to arbitration of the "no-strike" clause dispute.

Union representatives, however, were reported to have refused this offer on grounds that the right to strike was something that could not be arbitrated.

Nazis Bombers Strike Hard And Birmingham And Slash At London

By International News Service
After a heavy night attack on a city in England's west midlands, identified by Berlin as Birmingham, Nazi raiders struck at London again today.

But while the Anglo-German aerial warfare increased in intensity, triumphant Greek troops forged ahead in Albania. British planes pounded the Italian port of Bari and Germany embraced Romania in the expanding Axis-Japanese military alliance.

Athens reported that the Greeks, spurred by their capture of Koritza, were advancing on all fronts after repulsing furious but futile Italian counter-assaults. One Hellenic Vanguard of shock troops was driving toward the important Italian supply base of Argyrocastro in Albania.

Thousands of Italians were in headlong retreat to the north from Koritza. Thousands more surrendered to the Greeks. At Athens the Greek Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Papagos, urged his men to "throw the enemy into the sea."

In Rome the Italian high command admitted that enemy planes had bombed the Adriatic port of Bari, an embarkation point from which reinforcements would be rushed to stem the Hellenic tide in Albania.

And from a variety of sources information reached London that Chancellor Hitler has decided to extricate Premier Mussolini from the "humiliating position" in the Italian-Greek war—to "save the Axis from ridicule."

The Germans announced that terrific mass attacks were leveled against Birmingham during the night, starting fires so gigantic that they could be seen through field glasses from the French coast.

But reports from the western midlands city said that despite the heavy Nazi night raid, activities were resumed this morning on a normal basis. A British air ministry communique said that a number of persons had been killed and injured in the raid.

London experienced a new alarm this morning and several bombs fell on the capital, wrecking a few houses and apparently causing some casualties.

German long-range guns on the French coast shelled the Dover area for a hour but no damage or casualties were reported.

Jenkins Wins Technical K. O.

Sorawny Texan Establishes Himself As One Of Ring's Hardest Hitters

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 — Light-weight Champion Lew Jenkins, a sorawny Texan who looks as though a gentle summer zephyr would blow him down, today established himself as one of boxing's hardest hitters after scoring a quick technical knockout over Pete Lello in the second round of a scheduled 15-round fight.

Making the first defense of his crown, lanky Lew battered the frightened challenger from Chicago into a helpless hulk in two minutes and 37 seconds of the second session of the short encounter.

Pete never had a chance. He was jolted with a stinging left in the first round and then floored four times with both lefts and rights in the second before Referee Art Donovan stopped the lopsided encounter.

Jenkins fought minus the services of his manager, Hymie Caplin, who was being questioned by the district attorney in connection with a $4,000,000 card swindle. But though his manager was missing from his corner, his punch wasn't.

He stepped out coolly at the opening bell and playfully toyed with Lello, who previously knocked out the former cowboy before Jenkins gained the light-weight title from Lou Ambers.

In the second canto, however, he was all business. He moved about cautiously and then suddenly shot a stiff left to Lello's jaw. The challenger careened crazily to the canvas, climbed to one knee when the referee began to count and rose at the count of nine.

Jenkins immediately stepped in and pounded rights and lefts to the face and head of the defenseless challenger and again Lello went down for a nine-count. Again he climbed groggily to his feet only to be sent sprawling once more on the floor by a stiffening left hook.

He made a feeble attempt to regain his bearings but Donovan, on a mission of mercy, stepped in and waved a halt to the evening's activities.

Izzy Kline, Lello's manager, said the loss was entirely his fault, not his fighter's.

"Lello followed instructions," Kline explained. "We told him to watch for a right. He did. So what happened? Jenkins murders him with a left."

Jenkins had little to say about his victory or his manager's predicament.

"I said 'hello' to Hymie on the radio after the fight," Jenkins announced in his dressing room.

He said his future plans call for a fight on December 16 with Wes Ramey in Texas.

YALE, HARVARD FORGE NEW LINK WITH THE PAST

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 23 — Yale and Harvard are to forge another link with the past here today as they renew in the mammoth Yale Bowl a gridiron rivalry that dates back to 1875. It is to be the 59th chapter of a football serial into which has been written pretty much all the history and progress of the game.

Some 50,000 people will watch the action unfold. The Cantabs are slightly favored.

For neither team has the campaign been a great success. Yale in fact, has won only one game—over Dartmouth—and defeat today would make it the poorest season in Eli history. No other Yale team won less than two.

But both squads have been improving with the autumn, and here in New Haven confidence is high.

The Cantabs come up to the fray in excellent physical condition. The two backfield cripples of recent weeks, blocking back George Heiden and the fullbacking captain, Joe Gardella, are again in shape.

The Eli captain, Hal Whiteman is not so lucky as Gardella. A shoulder separation has not responded fully to treatment, and Dave Rewick will probably fill his blocking back place.

Tactically the game is likely to develop into an air battle. The Elis have no ground attack to match Harvard's, and no back as versatile as the gifted Charley Spreyer, and to move the ball must use the air lanes.

NEW PUNTING RECORD SET AT EIGHT MILES

CINCINNATI, Nov. 23—A new punting "record" was on the books today.

Ten-year-old Glen Riegan booted his football near his home. It lit in a truck and traveled eight miles—14,080 yards—before the boy recovered it at the plant of the Valley Builders Supply Co.

FIGHTING IRISH FACE TEST IN PURPLE BATTLE

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 23 — Dropped from the undefeated ranks by Iowa a week ago, the fighting Irish of Notre Dame today clashed with twice-defeated Northwestern before a capacity crowd of 48,000 at Dwyer Stadium.

Although the pre-game odds were about even, the Wildcats entered the contest with high hopes of improving their all-time record against the Irish. Northwestern in history has beaten Notre Dame but twice, while Notre Dame has beaten Northwestern fifteen times.

The Wildcat hopes were based on a belief that the Irish have been falling off rather than improving as the season advanced. Notre Dame barely outlasted Army and Navy and, although outplaying Iowa on the field, lacked scoring punch in that game.

The imposing Northwestern backs, Red Hahnenstein, Bill De Correvont and Paul Soper, were matched by Notre Dame's Steve Juzwik, Bob Saggau and Milt Piepul. Notre Dame's line was somewhat heavier, but Northwestern's was rated the faster.

The Notre Dame-Northwestern series in recent years has featured many close battles, strange "breaks," and fierce playing. It would rate as an "upset" if today's game developed into a peaceful affair.

BIG RED ROLLS AGAIN BEFORE CAPACITY CROWD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23 — A mighty Cornell football team, slightly camera-shy, will renew its ancient rivalry with Pennsylvania on the cleared turf of Franklin Field today before a turn-away crowd of 78,300 persons.

Not since the late Knute Rockne brought his last, and one of his greatest, teams to Philadelphia in 1930 have the Penn athletic officials been forced to roll out their circus seats and lock the gates on late comers.

But so it will be on this November afternoon, when the Big Red rolls again against the canvas-jacketed defenders of old Penn.

This will be the last time that one of Cornell's greatest all-time teams will answer an opening whistle together, for the majority of its stars, unbeaten since 1938 until the camera clicked and the referee didn't at Hanover a week ago, are playing their last game under the red banner today.

Capt. Walt Matuszkaak, big Nick Drahos, Harold McCullough, Mort Landsberg, Bud Finerman and many more of Snaveley's stalwarts from Ithaca will be singing their gridiron swan song in this big game of the Ivy league's season.

Cornell rate a stickout favorite over a Pennsylvania outfit that has blown alternately hot and cold. But this is nobody's pushover football team, this Quaker outfit of Captain Ray Frick and Flying Frannie Reagan, and their running mates. Even in its bad games, such as the Michigan and Harvard setos, it has showed flashes of greatness.

GOPHERS CLASH WITH BADGERS IN FINAL GAME

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 23 — Mighty Minnesota, the Midwest's last pretender to the mythical national football championship, today clashed with Wisconsin before a near-capacity crowd of 43,000.

The Northmen, unbeaten and untied after one of the most imposing schedules in the country, entered the game with a tremendous weight advantage and with odds of 3 to 1 favoring them to hang up their eighth straight victory. It was the Gophers' closing game of the season.

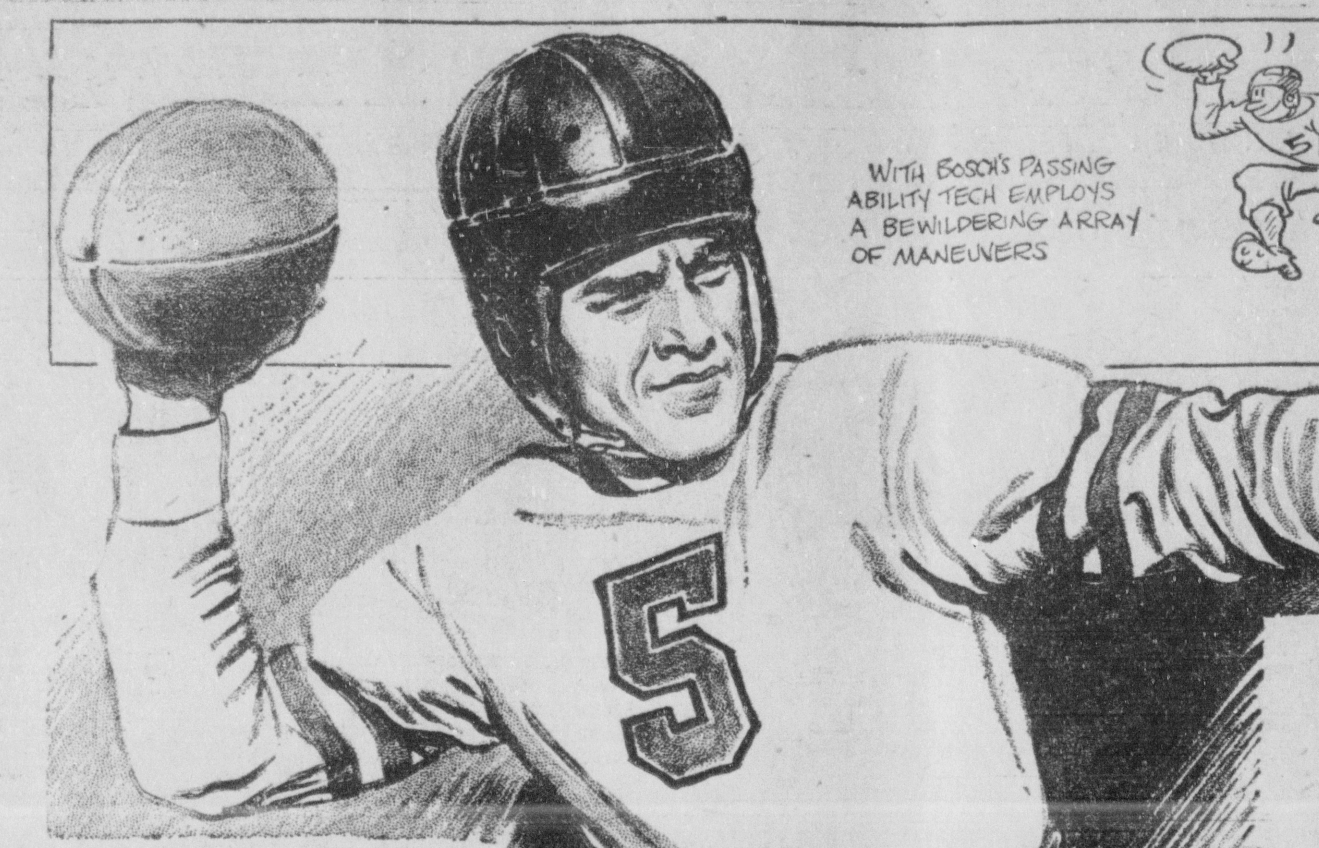

The weight average for Minnesota was 218 pounds in the line and 192 pounds in the backfield, against 200 in the line and 186 in the backfield for Wisconsin. In 49 previous meetings, Minnesota has won 29 games, Wisconsin has won 15 and there were 5 ties.

The Badgers' hopes of marring Minnesota's record—the Gophers are already in possession of the Big Ten championship—were pinned chiefly on George Paskvan, one of the country's greatest fullbacks.

Halfback George Franck heads the Minnesota galaxy of stars. Franck and four others starting Gophers—Bob Bjorklund, Bill Johnson, Bob Paffrath and Bill Kuusisto—are seniors entering their last game of collegiate football today.

Paskvan and three other starting Badgers, John Tennant, Fred Gage and Dick Embick, are seniors.

Cornell's Boys Visited In Dressing Room By Eastern Scribe

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—Carl Snaveley can't be described as a gabby guy, and the interview in his office in the Cornell gymnasium wasn't going too well. He isn't a fellow who volunteers information, and apparently the visiting firemen weren't asking the right questions.

Anyway, the conversation drifted along rather aimlessly, and became actually embarrassing when, with more heat than seemed necessary, he denied a request to see Hal McCullough.

Then, unexpectedly, as perfunctory goodbyes were about to be said, Carl relented.

"Oh I guess it will be all right if you see McCullough," he said. "Only don't get him into trouble with your questions. We've had enough of that around here."

And that's how it happened I got into the Cornell dressing room—and learned why the "Big Reds" are a great football team.

It was a truly startling experience to walk into that room. I can't say just what I had expected, but certainly nothing like I found.

Over in a corner a radio was filling the room with a noisy swing tune. In front of the locker, Frank Finerman, the center (and a very good one, by the way), was beating the time with drumsticks upon a washboard and atop one of the trainer's tables. Al Kelley was improvising a tap-dance routine. Over all was the buzz of conversation, and the ring of easy laughter.

Started, I asked McCullough as I said "hello." "Does Mr. Snaveley know about this?" I was afraid I'd walked in on a revel that was meant to be a secret. I couldn't believe the grim, dour man I'd just left upstairs would tolerate such levity.

"Oh, I guess he approves all right," Hal said. "It happens every afternoon. Only sometimes it is noisier, and he never has said a word. If he didn't like it he'd tell us—he doesn't hesitate to tell us what he doesn't like about our football."

Only once before had I been introduced to a scene just like that. That was in the Yankee clubhouse at the Stadium after one of their world series victories. The gayer there had the same sparkling quality, was as spontaneous and unplanned.

I asked McCullough when he thought the "Big Reds" had first realized that they had become a football team, one that had obtained a real grasp on the game.

"I guess it was after our Dartmouth game last year," he said, after studying the question for a moment. "Nobody has ever said anything, but looking back now, I guess that was the time. That game was the first in which we really rolled, learned for ourselves just how much football Mr. Snaveley had taught us, what it could accomplish when properly applied. Since then it has become a matter of pride to play as much football as we can."

That's what is so compelling on the field, the high playing standards they've set for themselves, the effort and team work they put into their play. As individuals few of them are truly great players.

But average talent is able to produce well high perfect football, because eleven players have learned to work with each other. Every detail of every play is worked at. That's Snaveley's way, and these kids of his want to play it that way.

Michigan's Mighty Eleven And Buckeyes To Clash Before 75,000

COLUMBUS, Nov. 23—The mercury man and the miracle man will take their final bows today as Michigan's mighty Wolverines battle the Ohio State Scarlet Scourge before 75,000 homecoming fans in Ohio Stadium in the 38.52 annual clash between the two old Big Ten rivals.

Tommy Harmon, Michigan's mercury man, will be taking his final curtain call after three years of gridiron grazing, while Fielding H. Yost, the man who drove the Wolverines to the top of the gridiron heights, will be bowing out after 39 years of service with the maize and blue.

Yost will be watching his final game as head of the athletic system, from which he will retire next June. He coached the Wolverines for 25 years before taking over the athletic directorship in 1927. From 1901 to 1906 Yost directed the Michigan eleven to 55 victories, one tie and one defeat and brought the gridiron world its first point-a-minute teams.

Harmon's Last Chance For Harmon, it will be his final chance to break Harold "Red" Grange's record of 31 touchdowns in three years of collegiate competition. The Gary Gale has 30 touchdowns and on a dry, fast field, had a better than even chance of breaking the former Illinois star's record.

Although Harmon will be the center of attention, Ohio State's Don Scott, pre-season choice for back of the year, is expected to cut loose with everything in a final bid for All-America honors.

With Minnesota already "in" as Big Ten champion, the game will have little bearing on the championship race except to give the Wolverines undisputed second place—if they win.

30,000 EXPECTED TO SEE COLGATE, COLUMBIA TILT

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—A crowd of 30,000 was expected to witness the eighth annual gridiron classic between the Columbia Lions and the Colgate Red Raiders at Baker Field today. The struggle is considered a toss-up, although Colgate has the better record this season.

Luther League Members From City Playing Part In State Convention

Seven Local Delegates In Attendance At Columbus Meet

LAWRENCE PRICE SPEAKS

State Officers To Be Chosen By Representatives Of 150 Churches

Luther League members from Circleville and Pickaway County, Saturday, were among the 350 league members from all parts of the state, attending the Luther League state convention in West Alexandria.

The convention opened Friday at 1 p. m., with seven local league members in attendance. They were Norma Wolfe, official delegate, Doris Schreiner, Mary Schreiner, Ethyl Hussey, Elmina Morrison, Anna Marie Fellmeth and Theodore Koch.

Among the principal speakers at the event, which will continue until Sunday noon, are Lawrence Price, of Grace Lutheran Church, Fremont, and the Rev. C. A. Wiedersanders, West Alexandria.

Special music will be furnished by the Choral Union Concert, under the direction of the Rev. George Schultz, Jr., Columbus.

Members from nearly 150 Ohio leagues are expected to attend the business sessions Saturday afternoon and the religious services Sunday. State officers for the coming year will be elected during the business meeting Saturday.

Officers for the local league will be elected December 3, Ned Dresbach, president, has announced.

With local Luther League members at the state convention in West Alexandria, other members of the Trinity Lutheran Church are planning to attend the special installation for the Rev. C. F. Lyle as missionary at Washington C. H., Sunday, at 2:30 p. m.

The Trinity Lutheran Senior Choir, under the direction of Carl Leist, will sing the anthem "My Defense is of God," and Mrs. Dudley Carpenter will sing "How Beautiful Upon the Mountain" as the special music for the program.

The installation of a full-time pastor at Washington C. H. comes as the result of a canvass made early this spring by the Rev. G. L. Troutman and 14 member of the local Lutheran church of Lutheran families in the Washington C. H. community.

During the summer, while senior seminarians from Capital University were holding Sunday school and church at Washington C. H., the attendance showed such a substantial increase that a full-time pastor has been justified.

The place of worship is located adjacent to the Gardner House on Circle Avenue, two blocks south of the court house.

Attitudes Toward the Gospel Lesson

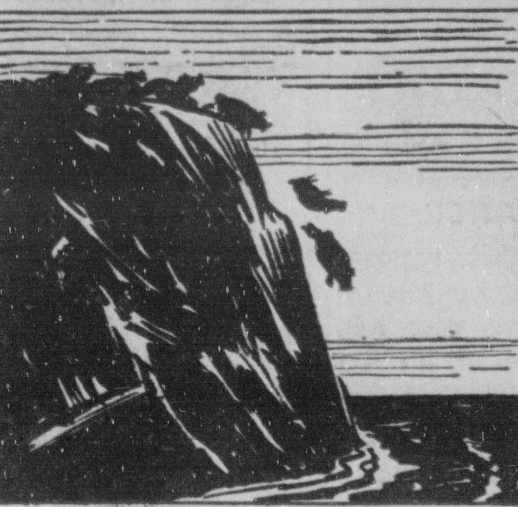

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 8.

Jesus went to sleep in a boat in which He and His disciples were crossing the lake. A storm arose and, frightened, the disciples awoke the Master, who rebuked them for their fear and bade the waves be still.

When Jesus and the disciples landed, a man afflicted with many devils met them. Jesus drove the evil spirits out of the man, and they entered into swine, which ran down a steep place into the sea.

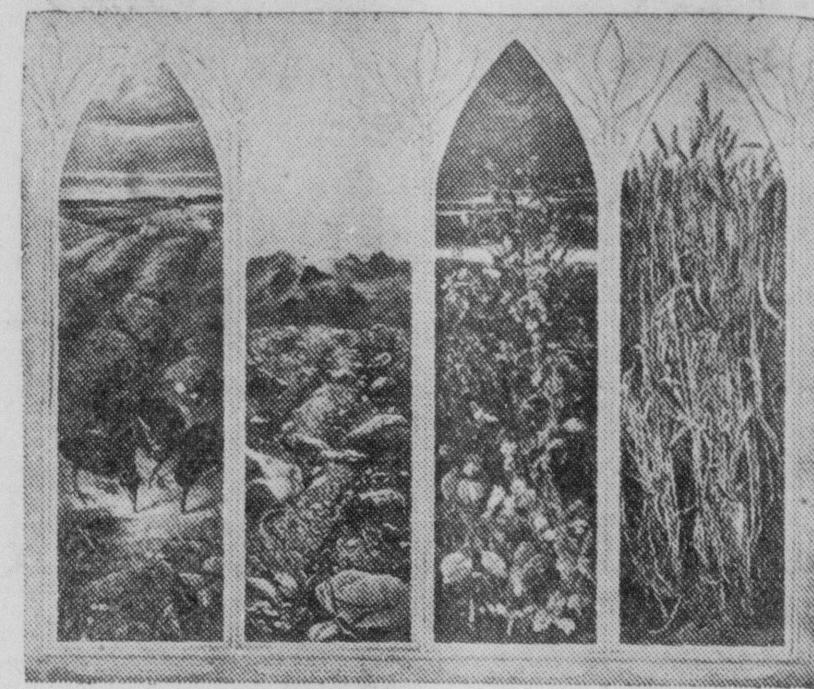

A sick woman came behind Jesus in the crowd and touched the hem of His garment. "Who touched me?" He asked, and said to her, "Daughter, be of good comfort. Thy faith hath made thee whole. Go in peace."

A young girl, daughter of the ruler of the synagogue, died, but Jesus said, "She is not dead, but sleepeth." He took her by the hand saying, "Maid, arise," and she did.

"The Obligation of Possessions" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, during the worship hour, Sunday morning at First Presbyterian Church. The Presbyterian choir will sing the anthem "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem" by Maunder.

Dr. G. J. Troutman and the Rev. G. L. Troutman have arranged for the morning worship subject at Trinity Lutheran Church, Sunday "The Jericho Road," while "Jesus in the Home of Zacchaeus" will be the subject at the evening service.

Several of our business men are now making plans for the placing of Christmas decorations. Mayor Fred Hines told us he would lend every possible assistance toward getting these decorations in place. The community club, too, can be depended on for a Christmas tree or some other kind of decoration of equal beauty. This will be one of the subjects up for discussion at the meeting next Monday evening at Pontius restaurant.

The Ladies Aid of the U. B. church with their before Thanksgiving sale at the Foreman sales room, report "business good."

Our Bob Morrison recently at home here with Dad and Mom C. B. Morrison, announced that soon he will be installing at radio station at Marion. For the last few years he has been a technician with one of the Capital City stations. He, with the wife and little Miss Connie were Thanksgiving visitors at the Morrison home and announced that they are removing from Columbus to Marion the first of the month and by the 15th hopes to have the new station, of which he is chief engineer, "on the air" and in full operation.

Bill Bowers, Jr., a member of the military band down at Fort Shelby, sends letters back to the home folk about every week and with the last one, some pictures of local scenes there. Says they are good to 'em. Let him and all the band boys get out for fresh air at 5:30 every morning and march and play which serves as a signal for the whole regiment to get up and doing. Plenty of good eats and that helps a lot with the rest of it.

WALNUT SCHOOL NEWS

Dr. Smith and Dr. Blackburn visited our school Wednesday morning and presented a picture showing the spread and prevention of tuberculosis.

The children of the high school were much interested in this picture and gained some very valuable information from it. We hope for a large response on the skin testing program which will be started soon in the county.

The office was informed this week that the trophy case in the hall was a gift of the class of 1931. Mr. Bennett has written to Mr. Burkhardt of the Athletic Specialty Co. to obtain a suitable name plate for this case that the class may be recognized as the donor.

Mr. Claridge was called into our school to investigate a couple cases of truancy, this week. These cases are few but we think that, in a land of opportunity such as ours, people would not allow their children to be deprived of the educational opportunity that the state and county is presenting to them.

Assembly
The regular assembly was held in the auditorium on November 20 at 10:15 a. m. The program was in charge of the Senior class.

The first number was a song by the whole assembly. Dewey Black led us in a salute to the flag. Ruth Barr read the President's Thanksgiving Proclamation and was followed by a scripture reading by Jeannette Spangler.

Rev. E. E. Winterhoff of St. Paul Lutheran Church gave a very fine Thanksgiving address. Another song ended the assembly.

Members of our school orchestra who play in the 25 piece Pickaway County Grange Orchestra, are Donna Dill, Betsy Huffer (Nebraska Grange), and Jeanne Noecker, Dick Noecker, John Noecker (Scioto Valley Grange). This group won the district instrumental contest held at the University Hall, Ohio State University the evening of November 18. A program of not more than 22 minutes and not less than 18 minutes is the time requirement. The two winning groups will appear on the program at Cleveland for the Ohio State Grange. One will appear on the Farmer's Week Program.

G. A. A.
Approximately twenty-eight girls stayed Monday night for play-night. Marilyn Winter's squad was in charge. The girls were divided into groups for the various games. Among the games were: Chinaman's Race, Basketball Toss-up and Basketball. Since this play-night turned out so well we are planning to have one night in every month set aside as play-night.

Sports
Our basket ball team suffered its second defeat of the year at the hands of a rejuvenated Salt Creek team. Walnut boys played a fair game but finally had to bow to the more inspired Salt Creek team. Walnut hated to lose the game but the Salt Creek team was just as much overjoyed as Walnut was down hearted. Well the sun came up the next morning and the Walnut team put that game away in the files and are now busily engaged preparing for Ashville next week.

Chemistry
Chemistry students have finished a unit on water. Two days each week are spent in laboratory work. New laboratory equipment was received.

English
Our departments of high school English are engaged in various things which are of value to the pupils.

The Freshman class is studying conversation. This includes introduction and improvement in conversation. The Sophomore class is studying interviews for the purpose of gaining information and also the study of buying and selling articles. The Junior Class is studying about Shakespeare's plays. The play which they are now studying is MacBeth. Senior English consists merely of grammar review.

Fourth Grade
This week both reading classes presented a Thanksgiving play. Indian men, wigwams, and turkeys were crayed during the art period.

Third Grade News
The boys and girls on our spelling honor roll this week are: Jerry Mayberry, Lee Owen Barr, Boyd Spangler, Juanita La Rue, Junior Mankin, Sarah Hedges, Luella Hutchins, Martho Norris.

LABOR'S CHANCE

LABOR troubles, says Raymond Clapper, go with democracy as fleas go with dogs. They are inevitable, and in a time like this, when labor has been going on short rations for some years, now that it sees profits reports and knows that lots of work is coming, naturally it goes after its slice of the red meat.

Which is all true enough. Nor does any sane person want to deny labor its thick and juicy slice, with browned potatoes and gravy.

But labor has a real chance now in this country. Not only to increase organization and to demand its share of the dinner, but to show the nation that it can be responsible. It has a choice. It can go in for the strikes and upsets, the delays, miseries and general bitterness which labor fanatics have sometimes thought necessary, or it can show by its upright and controlled attitude that it is capable of carrying its share of the nation's load with moderation, dignity and self-respect.

The average workingman is the salt of the earth, the backbone of the nation. He wants a good job, with good pay. He wants to do that job and earn that pay honestly and competently. Then he wants to go home to see a fine, growing family in comfortable rooms with a good dinner on the table, sound clothing and something good to read on the table and hear on the radio. These things are his due.

Labor leadership should see that he gets his due, and with it the respect and admiration of his fellow Americans. The workers, in his turn, should see that he gets sound and intelligent leadership, co-operating with employers for the common good.

Nothing less than this will satisfy America.

START-STOP MUSSOLINI

MUSSOLINI once started being a pacifist, and stopped. Then he started hating the Germans and all their works. He stopped that and joined Hitler. Now he's started to conquer Greece and says when he's once started on his way he never stops.

Maybe he thinks he won't. But so far, when he has found himself under pressure from strong outside forces, he has given in. This time, in his struggle with Greece, he finds himself opposed not only to the brave and warlike handful of troops which make up the Greek army, but to Britain. He finds himself opposed, also to all the

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

U. S. COULD TIP BALANCE

WASHINGTON—The diplomatic reports which President Roosevelt now has on his desk all indicate that the war has reached the most crucial point in its variegated history, and that adroit, even strong-arm diplomacy by the United States might tip that balance to a British victory. How this may be done is now the most vital question before the White House and State Department.

To understand the role which the United States may or may not play in tipping the balance, one must look back on the history of this war.

The attempt to invade England last September stands out like the Battle of Marne, when in 1914 the Germans came within a few miles of taking Paris. Had they penetrated fifteen miles further the outcome of the World War would have been different.

But from that moment on, the World War settled down to a long drawn-out siege, in which the sticking powers of the German people were pitted against the immense resources of the Allies, and during which the German war machine lost its immediate advantage of advance preparation.

Twenty-six years later—in September, 1940—the Battle of Britain seems to have been almost identical. At one time the Germans actually had barges loaded with men headed for British ports. But the alertness of the Royal Air Force, plus bad weather, drove them back.

The entire force of Hitler's mighty military machine, after years of painstaking preparation, was poised for this attack. Now that the attack has failed, Hitler has had to settle down to a waiting, harassing policy.

Such a policy easily can be disastrous. For the key to Hitler's political success has been his constant uncorking of victories for the German people. Austria, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, and France all have been held up as the glorious reward for terrific sacrifice and suffering.

HITLER'S WORRY

For five months now there have been no new conquests, no new triumphs to celebrate. Instead British airplanes have dumped almost nightly death over Berlin, Hamburg and the Ruhr. These, plus their own straitened economic circumstances, are the chief things the German people have had to think about. On top of them have come two other important developments.

One was the re-election of Roosevelt, whom Nazi propagandists have played up freedom-loving thought in the world.

Nobody loves Benito any more, neither folks at home nor folks abroad. He's hoeing a lonesome and thankless row. He might, out of sheer forces of numbers, win the immediate fight with Greece. But he's losing his share of this completely unjustified and idiotic war.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

JAPAN'S abandonment of a considerable southern Chinese area which the Mikado's troops had previously occupied is a development in the Asiatic war of much interest to the state department's division of Far Eastern affairs. What does it mean? That the Japs are getting the worst of the fighting? That's what our Far Eastern experts are wondering. As yet they're uncertain.

The departmental division of Near Eastern affairs is equally interested in the slow start Italy got off to in its campaign against Greece. The division's impression was that the Fascist invasion would be, from the jump, a walk-over.

Tokio's account is that Nippon merely is moving its forces in China to new positions where they can operate more handily. Another story is that they're being conveniently assembled for a descent upon Britain's strong base of Singapore.

The Chinese version, however, is that Generalissimo Chiang Kai shek's men actually have chased the enemy out of Kwangsi province and now are getting them on the run in adjoining province of Kwangtung.

Whenever you encounter the syllable "si" in a Chinese name you know that that place is west of somewhere or other, and "tung" means east of somewhere. For instance, Shansi province is west of a certain range of mountains in northern China. "Shan" means mountains. And Shantung province is east of the same range. But Kwangsi and Kwangtung provinces are away to the southward. "Pe" signifies north, "Nan" south and "king" capital. Thus Peking was China's northern capital; Nanking its southern one. I'm not fluent enough in Chinese to translate "kwang" but "si" and "tung" are as plain as print to me.

JAPAN WEAKENING?

When a Chinaman wants to say "git out!" to an intruder, he employs the term "Chuh!" Its literal meaning is "Scatter!" Seemingly they're saying "Chuh!" to the Japs at present.

Maybe the islanders are truthful in their contention that they simply are making a few strategic rearrangements, but a pretty strong hunch here is that they're getting dangerously close to the bottom of their resources, and can't maintain their luck much longer.

Near eastern observers aren't so hopeful of a long continued Greek resistance against the Italians.

They give the Greeks credit for being formidable scrappers and, in that respect, they don't rate the Italians very highly. Nevertheless, the Greeks are so heavily outnumbered and so under-equipped that experts surmise they can't last long.

All the same, our departmental Near Eastern division expected the Fascists to drive right across the northern Hellenic border in short order and they failed to do it. In fact, Rome itself has to admit as much. It excuse is that its forces were delayed at the outset by bad weather and worse roads over the mountains. The theory here, though, is that they might have foreseen these handicaps and provided for discounting them.

The conclusion is that Signor Mussolini isn't as competent a blitzkrieger as Herr Hitler.

Still, it's predicted that, in the long run, Italy's superior weight will count. Besides, if it doesn't, it's the consensus that Herr Hitler will have to lend German aid to his Axis partner. The Germans, indeed are known to have a poor opinion of Italy's military prowess and it's presumed that they must be chuckling at Benito's initial discomfiture, but, in their own interest, they can't afford to have it continue indefinitely.

TURKEY MAY BE TOUGH

That holds as to Greece.

But the Axis' next step will have to be into Turkey, on its way to Suez. And it's guessed that the Turks will prove to be tougher mouthful than the Greeks. There are many more of them, they're better trained soldiers, they're tolerably well-armed, they're at longer range from Axis bases, they have a bit of water between them and their prospective would-be invaders, they're better situated to take advantage of such assistance as Britain may be able to afford them, and Russia may be in their corner.

Anyway, as previously remarked, the state department's Near and Far Eastern divisions are watching alertly.

DIET AND HEALTH

Proposed Health Tests For Our New Army

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Dr. Lewis J. Moorman of Oklahoma City, wrote last year a very clever little article called "A Bug Full of Tricks." He was referring to the germ of tuberculosis and it has, indeed, been a plaguey bug for the human race and one which we have spent some of our best efforts in trying to subdue.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It has probably been an unwelcome and uninvited guest in man's body since the very earliest times. We know from examination of Egyptian mummies that 6,000 years ago on the banks of the Nile it produced its ravages. It certainly caused tuberculosis of the spine and hip, which we can see in mummies, and while there are no lungs left in these remains we must assume that there was tuberculosis of the lungs then also.

Will Survive Unfavorable Conditions

It is a microscopic bit of protein and sugar, covered with a skin of wax and this wax apparently has been its means of protection to allow it to survive under unfavorable conditions through long centuries and all sorts of weather conditions. It is possible to culture tubercle bacilli and have them live when picked up from the bodies of these same Egyptian mummies. They withstand cold and rain and heat—at least climatic heat. (And it takes a good deal of surgical sterilization heat to kill them.)

The Bible refers to its ravages in Deuteronomy—"The Lord shall smite thee with a consumption and with a fever and with an inflammation."

Some time ago a famous physician said that there were so many unsolved problems in the field of tuberculosis that "no matter what we take away from infinity, infinity remains."

During the last century, however, mankind has begun to get the better of the old enemy. About a hundred years ago the first open air treatments for tuberculosis were begun. It is only within the last one hundred and fifty years that the different forms of tuberculosis—lung, bone and lymph gland—have been shown to be due to the same cause.

Germ was isolated.

About fifty years ago the germ itself was isolated and stained and cultured by Robert Koch and Paul Ehrlich. The use of the stethoscope to detect cases early—and the even more valuable use of the X-ray, discovered in 1895, have given us the means to detect the presence of tuberculosis in those who do not know they have it, and to keep them from infecting other people.

More productive than anything else has been the organized work directed by the National Tuberculosis Association in bringing all these methods to focus on the community problem of tuberculosis. We have long ago learned that people will not come in to hospitals or doctors for tuberculosis until it is too late to do them much good. We have to go out and find them and we have to provide places to treat them after they are found.

This is all part of the work of the National Tuberculosis Association, for the funds of which they depend upon the sale of Christmas seals. Anybody, no matter what his financial status, can buy some of these seals and use them on letters during the Christmas season. He may have the satisfaction of knowing when he does this that he is helping in his own way to circumvent the sly ways of the "bug full of tricks."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
F. L., Lansing, Ill.—"I have a callous on the bottom of my foot. It keeps getting larger and bothers me a great deal in hot weather."
Answer: What you describe is plantar wart—a form of wart that resembles a corn, having a soft center with a ring of horny tissue around it. Treatment is very exact. None of the old methods of treatment, including cauterization and surgery, are of any value. Small plantar warts are treated by X-ray. Larger ones by electric desiccation.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are "Three Weeks' Relief from Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Relieving and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Twenty-three Harrison Township school children narrowly escaped serious injury when their bus was struck by a loaded coal truck on Route 23, north of South Bloomfield.

Pickaway countians, becoming hardened to moist regeneration, were given a dry ice treatment by Old Man Winter when the official temperature dropped to 19 degrees, the highest reading of the previous day being 42.

The Ohio Association of County Treasurers were on record as favoring reduction of the retail sales stamp from the current 3 percent to 2 percent, with all exemptions to be eliminated.

10 YEARS AGO

Dr. John B. May, New Holland, father of Charles H. May, Circleville, was made a life member of the Pickaway County Medical Society through a vote of the organization. It was the first time in 75 years that such a vote had been taken by the society.

Members of the high school squad and the coach, captains and coaches of the county schools and members of the Circleville Kiwanis Club were to be entertained at a rabbit supper at the Boggs Hotel, with Ernie Godfrey, freshman coach at Ohio State University, Columbus, the speaker of the evening.

The senior class of Circleville High School enjoyed a Thanksgiving party, 52 members and teachers being present for the interesting affair.

25 YEARS AGO

Representative women of Pickaway, Ross, Perry, Fairfield and Hocking Counties held a suffrage meeting at Logan to urge Congressman Ricketts to support the federal amendment.

H. P. Folsom, Circleville, delivered an address on "Government Ownership of Telephone and Telegraph" before the twentieth annual convention of telephone men at the Hartman Hotel, Columbus.

The congregation of the United Brethren Church arranged a surprise donation party for their pastor, the Rev. H. C. Elliott, and Mrs. Elliott.

A CASE OF MODESTY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.,—Although the regulations of St. Mary's University in San Antonio require that registering students must submit three photographs, Jack Vandee turned in six pictures of himself. "Three for the registrar and one for each of the girls in the office," Vandee explained modestly.

On Wings of Song

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

FRAN LE MAZE did not return to New York that summer. It was October when Kit went out to bring her back.

She was bound for the train that was to return her to New York when a taxi collision sent her to the hospital with a broken ankle. There were flowers and books and other gifts that arrived by telegraph and post. But it was the letters from Vance and Kit, unfolding a story of work and courage and accomplishment, that lessened the pain and fed her hope.

Vance's July letter began the story. He wrote, in part:

"I'm the guy who should be getting sympathy. Trying to run my own career and play Simon Legree to Kit will have me in a sanitarium any day. But, you'll be pleased to know, I'm making strides in the right direction. We gave Helfer the bum's rush and Armendi, about whom I have already written you, is undoing Helfer's mistakes rapidly.

"My end of the show is getting engagements for her under the other name (Mary Moore), which she uses in her double life. She tells me that she is writing you about these engagements so I'll spare you the details.

"Armendi is a fabulous guy, but he's sound. He isn't easy to put on paper."

Armendi! Armendi and his dramatics. Armendi was an artist, needing an artist to depict him. His dramatics were subjects for bold strokes. The coarse red handkerchief with which he wiped his great brow. The black curls clutched with frenzied fingers. The black eyes that rolled with agony when a high note splintered, that glowed with warmth when a sweet, round note fell upon his ear.

His were eyes that saw below the surface of things, wise eyes that probed and searched the face of Kit O'Reilly the day that Vance brought her to him. There were the eager eyes, the pliant mouth of the girl that he had wanted to find there. Sleeping things she did not know herself.

She sang for him. He nodded slowly. She had a voice—somewhere—this little one. But she must begin anew. She must begin anew. She must be taught to use it. But, first, there were other things she must learn. Armendi would teach her those things. He would teach her to feel through her senses; he would make use of that sensitivity he read in her face. For her there must be no subtle shadings; she had not yet learned the primary responses of life. She had laughed, yes, but did she know laughter? He meant her to know laughter, and anger, and pity and sentiment and joy.

Laughter
Armendi the artist became Armendi the clown when he wanted to hear her laugh. Armendi, with her silly little hat perched on his huge head, her silver fox about his shoulders, mimicking across the basement kitchen. Kit laughed delightedly and his antics became more ridiculous until she rocked with laughter and fed her hope.

Then, the clown became the master and he commanded her to loose her voice in rollicking song.

Anger
He never taught her to be angry, but he used anger to make her sing when he knew she could and there were no other means to draw from her throat what he knew was there. When she was hot and tired with ceaseless effort, when the strident voice of the Gheto outside the windows of the basement, were more than she could sing against, Armendi rained a torrent of impassioned Italian about her ears and demanded to know if she thought the world a concert stage for one soloist. Kit sang.

But when he was angry because she refused to understand him, he was gentle and patient. He knew the delicacy of the instrument he was tempering.

Pity
It was more than pity that Kit experienced the day he made her walk with him—in the wake of a hurdy-gurdy—into the streets broiled by the August sun, flanked by the wretched tenements of the poor. Beauty was a stranger to that neighborhood and Nature was not kindly. But something stirred and walked there as the mechanical music rose on the hot air. It was something that lightened faces darkened by toil and poverty. Kit saw and sensed the power of escape in music and felt, in herself, a tremendous sense of duty toward the power in her to use it.

Sentiment
To make her body but a shell for the spirit that must burn there like a flame before it could serve her, Armendi fed her mind, weaving tales of the great. The soft, rich voice spun on and on with the colorful threads of memories and traditional lore until the company in his basement kitchen grew with the glamorous ghosts that came out of Time and crowded the shadowy room. The twilight slipped into night; the candles flickering over the bare, clean table burned low and the bread and cheese and wine were forgotten.

Great names—Verdi, Mozart, Caruso, Melba and Jenny Lind and all the great company of their peers—rolled from the eloquent tongue, telling the story of their struggles, their sacrifices that the world might share the gift of great music. The flame reached out and kindled the spark in the girl, filling her with gratitude, and humility and awe. The lump in her throat, the inarticulate voice in her soul. This was sentiment. This was sentiment to feed the kindling fire.

Joy
Armendi, the teacher, could not teach her joy. That emotion, which is neither gladness or delight, but both, she was to learn by her own performances. Not as Kitty O'Reilly, singing as Kitty O'Reilly had never sung before on her nationwide program on Saturday nights, did Kit begin to experience joy. Nor did the experience come suddenly. It was accumulative and it grew out of the experiences that were hers as Mary Moore.

At the end of July Kit wrote to Fran:

"Vance is not quite correct in saying I'm leading a double life. It's a triple life! There is (a) Kitty O'Reilly, who sings under the banner of Sembler, who golfs and dines with Jerry on Sundays. There is (b) Kit O'Reilly, who is beginning to see the first vague outlines of what music means, who is studying feverishly and sitting at the feet of Armendi. Armendi! I wish I could describe him to you, but you shall have to see for yourself what he is doing with me. What it is exactly, I do not know. I feel that I am in the process of being turned inside out in some tremendous upheaval. If we could remember what it was like when we were born, I think it would be something like this.

"To get back to this triple living: There is also (c) Mary Moore, the name under which I am masquerading in the roles Vance has cast me in. The funny part of it is that instead of feeling that I am acting as an obscure singer, grateful for any job, I feel that I am masquerading when I am being the Sembler star. I'm having lots of experience, darling, and how illuminating they are! Even the failures are exciting. And I have failures

"July 11—Danfield County Fair." That was the first entry in the red engagement book that was to record the progress of Mary Moore, nee Kit O'Reilly.

For Sunday, November 24

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds testimonies of a rather sudden, sudden and probably breath-taking occurrence which may have its final denouement far into the future. Such visitation may be radical and thrilling in its peculiar nature and its happy culmination depends on much discretion, discernment and wise choice when confronted by dilemma.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of adventure and experience quite out of the routine. There may be dramatic, romantic or startling visitations reaching far into the years for their real significance. These should be met with wise decisions.

A child born on this day should possess remarkable talents, with originality, freedom from all conventions and regulations, independent in thought and action. These are supported by subtle insight, strong intuitions and marked ingenuity.

Band Plays For Annual Affair

C. H. S. debaters were completing final preparations for participation in several on-coming events this week. Tuesday, two teams presented a practice debate before those interested in debate work. Next week, Samuel R. Johnson, debate coach, plans to hold more of these practices and panel discussions of the topic for debate, "Resolved: That the Power of Federal Government Should be Increased."

Friday, November 22, from 2:00-3:00, debaters heard a National Radio demonstration debate on the high school topic. Maury Maverick, mayor of San Antonio, Texas, and Paul Blanshard, New York attorney, gave the affirmative case and Frank Dixon, Governor of Alabama and H. W. Prentiss, president of the National Association of Manufacturers represented the negative.

Saturday, November 30, Mr. Johnson plans to take four debate teams to a Columbus East tournament. Starting at 9:15 there will be three rounds of debating. Silver plaques will be awarded winning class A and class B entrants.

December 6 and 7, C. H. S. debaters will attend a debate symposium and discussion at Ohio State University. There will be discussions, a banquet and a western conference debate between O. S. U. and Indiana University on the program for Friday. Saturday will be taken up by practice debates between various members of the Ohio high school speech league.

ATHLETIC HEADS ATTEND MEETING

On Tuesday night, November 19, Virgil Cress, athletic manager and Roy Black, athletic coach, attended the meeting of the South Central Ohio league at Wilmington. There the champions of the league in various sports were announced. Once more Greenfield is the champion football team in the league. Reports of last spring's events showed Greenfield to be champion of baseball, Washington Court House champion of track and tennis and Washington Court House and Circleville tied for the golf championship.

The league football schedule for 1941 was drawn up and Mr. Cress announced that the only change in Circleville's league schedule is that Circleville will compete with Hillsboro in its second game due to the fact that weather conditions will be better.

Circleville will be host to the league at its next meeting on March 18, 1941.

SENIORS AHEAD IN TOURNAMENT

"You'd better stay out of the net!" "Keep in your own position!" "Will you please stay off of my feet!" These were some of the exclamations uttered during the last few weeks when the girls' volleyball tournament went on.

As yet the championship has not been decided, although it is a race between the Thursday seniors and Wednesday juniors, the seniors having the edge over the latter.

Since there are only three school days this week, the winning team will be determined at the first of next week after the leaders play against each other.

EDITORIAL

This is the first of a series of editorials written by E.M.S. members to be published in the Red and Black. Half of the club members entered editorials at the meeting last week, and the other half will make their contributions at the next meeting, next Wednesday. Editorials selected by the judges as the best will be published in the Red and Black, and the names of those receiving this honor will appear in the annual.

This week, Stella Mae Skinner's editorial was chosen as the best. Helen Beck was second, and Mary Ruth Owens, third. The judges commented that it was very difficult to make a selection.

GIVE THANKS!

Once again we approach the gay whirl of the holidays which mean most in the hearts of Americans, namely, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

As Thanksgiving draws nigh, let us forget, let us take time and really give a fervent and heartfelt thanks to the God who has watched over us. Let us give thanks that our lights are burning cheerfully, that we have fuel to heap on our glowing fires, that there are meals which make our stomachs nearly burst, and that we can meet our families and friends without fear of death.

We are rapidly drawing close to a most grave crisis, when the fates of many of us will be decided. While this serious situation prevails, we must fill our hearts, our souls, and our minds with thanks.

So lift up your hearts and your heads, proud Americans, and let a war-ridden world know there is still one country which will pause and—Give Thanks! I

—Stella Mae Skinner

CLASS MEMBERS TO CHOSE PLAY

A committee will be chosen this next week to select the Junior class play. Samuel R. Johnson, dramatics instructor of C. H. S., plans to choose several plays from which the committee will select one to be staged in February or March.

Proceeds from the magazine subscription sale, conducted by the Junior class, amounted to $30.40, $79.97 was made from the sale of food during the football season. The amount, earned by the class so far this year, totals approximately $120.00.

CLASSES DESIGN LIBRARY PLATES

Book plates, made by the high school art classes are on display in the front hall on the art exhibition board. Made of waterproof India ink, they will be placed in books given to the library as suggested by Miss Gretchen Moeller, high school librarian.

Many of the plates are typical high school scenes, others are scenes of various historical points of interest in and around Circleville and Pickaway County, while others are pictures of noted personages, and a few are conventional designs.

NO MEETING HELD

There was no Poetry Club meeting this week because of Thanksgiving vacation. Next Friday, Norma Brown and Betty Norris will present a program of foreign lyrics. Plans for the initiation of new members will also be discussed.

Last week Miriam Brown and Catherine Ramsey offered a program of patriotic poetry. Several original poems, written in trochaic meter, were read.

C. H. S. MUSICIANS SERENADE "GOOD OLD SAINT NICK"

Saturday afternoon, the C.H.S. band played for the annual Santa Clause parade. They assembled at the high school building at 1:00 whence they proceeded to the downtown area to pick up Saint Nick and the remainder of the procession.

C. F. Zaenglein recently announced the results of the application drive for the beginners' band. Parents, teachers and pupils alike believe this movement to be a great help to future musicians of America. The applications number about 120.

Mr. Zaenglein expressed his pleasure at seeing such a great display of enthusiasm, but said that it is indeed unfortunate that so many of the pupils who handed in applications were without instruments of their own.

As yet the instructor has not decided when the initial meeting of the new band will be. He said that since so many children are dependent on the high school for their instruments the progress which he had hoped to make has been retarded.

All parents who are in doubt as to the instrument to buy their children may contact Mr. Zaenglein, who will be glad to give them advice.

This year, as has been the custom in previous years, the four Central Ohio bands, Arlington, Circleville, Lancaster and Mount Vernon, will hold their group festival. Mr. Zaenglein said that the directors of these organizations have been contacted to arrange a suitable date for the selection of music to be played at this affair.

EIGHT INITIATES ENTER HI-Y CLUB

Eight new members were formally initiated into the Hi-Y club, Monday evening. These members were Dick Clifton, Jack Goldsberry, Ross Kerr, Jack Lake, Roy Norris, Dave Orr, Robert Schumm and Dudley Smallwood.

In the initiation program following the business meeting Paul Turner talked to the candidates on the meaning of the Hi-Y pin, the purpose and the platform of the club. Following this the boys took a pledge to fulfill their duties as members of the club.

After this ceremony, the club turned over the rest of the program to the recreation committee headed by Lloyd Jones. Refreshments ended the evening.

During the business meeting the church committee reported that the Hi-Y club was to attend the First Methodist church, Sunday. Since other affairs conflict with the evening formerly planned, the box social-dance has been postponed until a later date.

PUPILS TO HEAR TWO PROGRAMS

The assembly scheduled for Tuesday was postponed until Monday morning at 10:30. At that time a foot counselor will speak on the care of the feet.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health doctor, will show a film on tuberculosis in an assembly, Tuesday at 10:30. Also at that time, Mrs. Tom Renick will talk to the pupils about the Clara Thee Major presentation of "Hans Brinker," sponsored by the Child Conservation League. This play will be given November 26, at 1:30, at a local theatre. It is open to the public.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

as the great enemy of the dictators. This propaganda has now had reverse effects, and the German people, remembering how the United States turned the tide in the last war, cannot help but speculate ruefully regarding the prospect of the USA coming into this war.

Two has been the unexpected Italian setback in Greece. Probably not much of this has percolated through the censor to the German people but it has to Italy. Unrest is spreading underground among the Italian people, plus growing resentment against both Hitler and Mussolini.

AMERICAN DIPLOMATIC AIMS

All of these factors have been put under the State Department microscope to see what the United States could do — short of war — to bring greater pessimism to the German and Italian people, give greater strength to Great Britain. One possibility was to woo Russia, keep her out of the Axis. This was the chief reason for the Oumansky-Sumner Welles conversations. They have partially failed, due to the fact that all the United States can offer Russia is machine tools and gasoline, while Hitler can offer India, Persia, Afghanistan.

Another possibility was to stiffen U. S. policy against Japan, perhaps by sending ships to Singapore, thus taking over the British burden of policing the South Pacific. This would have devastating repercussions upon the Axis, but Roosevelt considers it risky, so it is being held in abeyance.

Third possibility, and the one actively under discussion inside the State Department now, is to bolster the French forces in North Africa, help bring them in on the side of the British.

This has tremendous possibilities. For at present General Graziani is bogged down in Egypt, where Mussolini has been sending him preterpitory orders to advance on Suez, to which Graziani has replied that he will not advance until he has sufficient supplies. So should Graziani be attacked by the French from the Tunis side, and by the British from the Egyptian side, it would mean certain defeat and probably the end of Mussolini.

PERSHING TO FRANCE?

This is the main effort to which American diplomacy is now directed. First step was a plan to send General Pershing, old friend of Marshal Petain, as special ambassador to France. To this end, the 80-year-old General underwent a thorough physical examination at Walter Reed Hospital. But although anxious to undertake the mission, his doctors forbade it. Unless he ignores their orders, the Pershing mission is out.

More recently, the State Department has been working on a plan to have a prominent Frenchman, who is close to Marshal Petain, come to the United States on a goodwill mission. This may happen soon.

However, the chief problem is to influence not merely Petain, who already has veered away from the Axis, but also Marshal Weygand. The latter is now in North Africa, and the French troops in that area would rise to his leadership overnight in any attack upon Italian Libya.

However, Weygand, bitter over his treatment during the last days of the war, is sulking. He is not pro-British, though not as violent against them as the officers of the French Navy. Recently, certain British emissaries have had confidential talks with General Weygand, but with no definite results.

U. S. SHIPS TO DAKAR

Another plan which has been considered in Army and Navy circles is for the United States to take cognizance of the part which Dakar might play in any attack upon South America.

The Germans are now developing Dakar as a giant air base under the protection of the French fleet. This is of vital concern to the United States, Brazil, Argentina and the rest of South America. Therefore, it has been suggested that the United States investigate joint Pan-American representations, followed perhaps by a naval display off Dakar, in order to persuade the French fleet to divorce itself from Germany and neutralize Dakar.

$45,000 IN CHRISTMAS SAVINGS TO BE DISTRIBUTED DECEMBER

BANKS OF CITY WILL PAY OUT $38,000 TOTAL

Average For District Set At $37.50, Slightly More Than Last Year

PROSPERITY WEEK EVENT

American Savers To Receive $365,000,000 Grand Total For Christmas

Christmas savings, amounting to nearly $45,000 will be paid to 1,200 Christmas club members in Circleville and Pickaway County, Monday, December 2, the opening day of National Prosperity Week. Circleville banks along will pay out $38,000 to 975 members, local bank officials reported Saturday. The Third National Bank will pay approximately $10,000 to 200 members, the Circleville Savings and Banking Company about $24,000 to 675 members and the Second National Bank about $4,000 to 100 members.

Other banks in the county will make similar distributions December 2. The Farmers National Bank, Williamsport, will pay $700 to 30 members and the Ashville Banking Company $3,000 to 80 members. The Citizens Bank of Ashville has yet made no report of its Christmas club savings for this season, although last year it paid ninety members about $4,000.

Average distribution per member in the county will be $37.50. Last year about $44,000 in Christmas club savings was paid to 1,050 members. The three Circleville banks last year paid out $37,500, about $500 less than will be paid out this year. In 1938, city banks paid out $29,000, and in 1937, $31,000.

The funds to be distributed locally will be a part of the three hundred and sixty-five million dollars to be distributed to more than seven and one half million Christmas Club members by approximately forty eight hundred banking and savings institutions and other organizations during National Prosperity Week. According to an estimate given out by Herbert F. Rawl, founder and president of Christmas Club, a Corporation, sponsors of National Prosperity Week, the total distribution per member amounts to $48.50 as against $48.80 for 1938. TRUCES URGED BRITISH PLANES BEFORE STRIKES POUND ITALIAN IN ARMS PLANTS PORT OF BARI

Senator Thomas Sees Danger In Blanket Legislation Against Walkouts

(Continued from Page One) lar to the system exercised by the national railroad mediation board. "That would work out much better than a law which would absolutely prevent a strike in a given industry."

Thomas made it clear that a system similar to the railway mediation board would not interfere with labor's historic right to strike. Under the mediation board, railway labor unions and the railroads give 30 days notice when they change an agreement. Two other 30-day periods also are set up during which the union cannot strike and the employer cannot change the status quo.

Periods For Talks The periods are set up to allow peaceful arbitration of disputes. In event the mediation board is unable to effect a settlement it has power to report to the President. The President in turn has authority to appoint an emergency committee to attempt to arbitrate a settlement. If all arbitration fails, labor still possesses the right to strike.

Thomas emphasized his warning against proposals to outlaw strikes in key defense industries. "Such a law," he charged, "would undermine the most important sections of the progressive labor legislation that has been enacted by the New Deal in the last eight years."

Reps. Randolph and Costello, in making demands for anti-strike legislation, both are generally recognized as pro-labor. They warned organized labor that a wave of popular resentment against unions would sweep through the country if strikes continue to hamper defense production. Rep. Cox demanded legislation making such strikes "treason" to the U. S. government.

Germany Embraces Romania In Expanding Military Alliance Of Axis

(Continued from Page One) Ion Antonescu signed a protocol aligning his country with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo economic and military alliance. He made a speech asserting that the Axis-projected new order in Europe must "destroy all occult forces which kindled the present war."

Turkey, however, resisted Axis pressure for adherence to the Axis plans. The Ankara government declared and enforced martial law in virtual all European Turkey and parts of Asiatic Turkey, including the strategic Dardanelles-Bosphorus defense zones.

Moscow, meanwhile, denied a German claim that Hungary had entered the Axis alliance with the approval and cooperation of the USSR.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. Horticulturist

QUESTION: When is the best time to plant shrubs?
ANSWER: Up to December 10 is one of the two best times of the year. The leaves have fallen, the shrubs are dormant, the ground is in excellent working condition and the shrubs have not been in storage over winter. The other ideal time is in the spring from the time the ground can be spaded until the leaves start to come out.

QUESTION: Is there a dwarf Japanese quince? I purchased two from a nursery to be used for screening my garage and although they are four or five feet in width, they are only about 24 inches high.

ANSWER: There are at least three types of the Japanese quince or flowering quince, or as it is so often incorrectly called the Japonica. The ordinary one with its brick-red flowers grows from five to six feet high; the dwarf one, the variety maulei, usually gets to be three to four feet high, rather upright growing with a dark pink flower; the pigny Japanese quince will get about two feet high and then spread sideways. This one has red flowers. In addition to these, there are a number of intermediate forms that have flowers varying from almost white through to maroon. One very lovely one is the variety Apple Blossom.

QUESTION: Is there any bud-deia or butterfly-bush that will not die to the ground?

ANSWER: Yes, one variety that was featured quite prominently in the catalogs 10 years ago is perfectly hardy. It is Buddleia alternifolia. It will get 8 to 10 feet high with lavender flowers all along the upper ends of the stems during June. The leaves are small, the twigs slender and droopy.

QUESTION: There is some sort of scale all over my lilac. What should I do about it?

ANSWER: The oyster shell scale often infests lilac, particularly the common lilac. If the scale is so thick that the growth has been weakened and the plant has ceased to bloom, I believe you will find it will pay to cut the shrub to the ground and allow it to grow new wood. If the infestation is not so heavy, then it may be controlled sometime before growth starts next spring with a dormant spray of oil or lime sulfur. I would suggest that you follow the instructions on the spray material containers.

QUESTION: Are Azalea mums particularly desirable?

ANSWER: Unfortunately the name Azalea mum is rather misleading. It is a coined name that was put on an old-fashioned variety by a certain nursery, the price considerably raised and the product very much advertised. You can buy the same thing under the name of cushion chrysanthemums, usually at lower prices.

"THE Westerner", an outdoor drama starring Gary Cooper, Walter Brennan, Doris Davenport opens a three day engagement Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre. We find Gary Cooper as "The Westerner." Sole law "West of the Pecos" is Brennan, bedraggled "judge" and leader of cattlemen. The supporting cast consists of Fred Stone, Forrest Tucker, Lillian Bond and many others. Produced by Samuel Goldwyn.

it is seldom possible to accept dates on programs of individual groups.

QUESTION: At your suggestion I developed a patio garden between my house and garage in a place too shaded to have a satisfactory garden. I have paved it with flat stone as you suggested. Would you recommend that I sow fescue grass between these stones, my idea being that it is low growing and would not require mowing.

ANSWER: I believe you would get a slightly more interesting effect using some of the low growing rock plants that would be able to take the shade. For this you could use Veronica filiformis, Mazus, Arenaria verna, Dianthus deltoideus, Ajuga and Sedum nevi. All of these except the Sedum could be walked on without doing serious damage.

QUESTION: What shrubs can I plant in the grove of trees across
